Judy's message of using humor as a transformational tool led to her being featured in the Wall Street Journal, New York Times, The Oprah Winfrey Show, CNN, as well as weekly blogger for Psychology Today. As an author, Judy doesn't like to brag, but she did write the Bible. No joke, she's the author of "The Comedy Bible" (Simon & Schuster) as well as, "The Message of You: Turn Your Life Story into a Money-Making Speaking Career" (St. Martin's Press), teaches readers how to become her competition.

"Companies hire Judy Carter to help deal with Workplace Trauma"

- Wall Street Journal

"I've booked speakers for our conference for 8 years and your keynote was the funniest and best I've ever seen."

- American Radiology Administrators

"Your keynote: "Laughing your way out of stress" was impressive and fun. The audience was composed of extremely intelligent nurse leaders and administrators and you won them over from the start! I'd highly recommend you to any other healthcare organization"

- Mary Lopez RN, MSN
Association of CA Nurse Leaders

"No other speaker received a standing ovation. Kudos to you!"

- Penn State, The Milton S. Hershey Medical Center

"Judy Carter can show you how to make your sense of humor pay off."

- Oprah Winfrey

"Judy taught me how to be funny."

- Diane Sawyer, ABC World News

"1,100 women can't be wrong: You are one of the best presenters we've had over the last ten years!"

- St. Joseph's Medical Center (Detroit, MI)
